

Founders

Andy Winterstein, PhD, ATC
University of Wisconsin
andrew.winterstein@wisc.edu

Sara Brown, MS, ATC
Boston University
sara@bu.edu

R. Mark Laursen, MS, ATC
Boston University
rmarkl@bu.edu

Stacy Walker, PhD, ATC, FNATA
Ball State University
sewalker@bsu.edu

Vision

Athletic trainers who practice at the highest levels of collaborative care and respond to the changing healthcare needs of society.

Purpose

Our purpose is to provide a community that serves as a collective voice for matters pertaining to athletic training education. We act with deliberate speed to advance education and the athletic training profession.

The AATE will:

- Advocate for educational programs on matters pertaining to accreditation, regulation, certification, representation, and policy.
- Identify and support research that advances athletic training education.
- Seek to collaborate with the CAATE, BOC, NATA, and NATA Foundation on issues impacting education.
- Create a community of practice that facilitates communication among those involved in athletic training education.
- Provide guidance and resources for the development of innovative and model practices in athletic training education.
- Identify strategies to recruit and retain students who want athletic training as a career.
- Offer faculty development in teaching, scholarship, leadership, and program administration.
- Provide a platform and resources for faculty recruitment.
- Promote innovation in athletic training education.
- Foster new partnerships with national and international organizations and agencies in the interest of advancing our mission.

Structure

Membership will be open to institutions and organizations that sponsor education programs at any level, with membership resources for those associated with the program.

Interested?

Join us on LinkedIn:

Or contact us at:

assnathtrained@aated.org